The UAE consistently received the highest number of votes during all the voting phases. We are certain that once all the participating countries have finalised their plans for the event, the UAE will have the largest number of participating countries.

"The event will add value to the economy of the UAE, specifically Dubai. There are lots of ongoing work that is being done here. We are investing a lot of time for the event, and we are sure it will be a very successful one. I am sure that India will be one of the major attractions of Expo 2020."

Navdeep Singh Suri, Ambassador of India to the UAE, said that India went for the biggest plot size that was available and selected the opportunity segment for its participation.

"The government of the UAE was kind enough to allow us to retain the pavilion after the show and this is important because the location of the pavilion is in the heart of the new developments in Dubai," he said. "We want to send a message to Indian companies back home that they don't have to wait until Expo 2020 for the business opportunities that are available. We also want to highlight that this is a nation-building event, it is not just a trade show."

Sujoy Bose, managing director and CEO of National Investment and Infrastructure Fund India, noted that India is a country that offers some of the biggest opportunities in investments in infrastructure.

"It is a very opportune moment to invest in the country's infrastructure sector," he said. "India is one of the world's fastest-growing economies with stable macro-economic indicators. Over the past few years, India has gone through some major reforms that have transformed the country into a hotbed for investors. India needs over 25 million affordable homes over the next few years. This is among many other factors that will drive the infrastructure sector in the country."
